

PLAIN YELLOW DOG, BUT A REAL HERO

Prince Gave Warning of Fire in House, but His Owners Thought that He Had Suddenly Gone Mad.

AWOKE IN TIME TO ESCAPE.

Now the Watchful Cur Is the Pride of the Block in Which He Lives Over on Brooklyn Heights.

Prince, a yellow dog, roused seven families in a burning tenement to-day at 60, 7, Hicks street, Brooklyn. He had to work hard to do it, and he kept at his task despite boots, bootjacks and various other articles, including some good hearty curses hurled at his mongrel head.

The dog is attached to the family of Frank Otto, who occupies the second floor of the tenement, and when he went around pulling the bedclothes from the sleeping forms of the Ottos to-day they thought he had gone mad. He refused to be quiet or to be insulted at the things thrown at him, and when he was driven away it was only to return again and continue his strange antics.

The Ottos would not leave their warm beds, but Mrs. Bridget McCarren, who lives overhead, heard the commotion Prince was causing and felt that something must be wrong. She opened her door to look into the hallway and a great cloud of smoke met her.

Mrs. McCarren raised a cry of fire and in a few minutes all the occupants of the house were in the street, some of them in their night gowns, watching a brisk fire shooting up from the basement. Some one ran to the lower Fulton street police station and an alarm was sounded.

Before the firemen reached the street Otto remembered that he had left his mother-in-law behind in his eagerness to get the rest of the family out of danger. Detectives Ward and Murray ran into the tenement, led by Prince, and found the old lady, who was unable to help herself, nearly overcome by the smoke.

The fire, which was caused by a leaky gas meter becoming ignited by the furnace, was soon extinguished and every one went back to bed, but not before they had told Prince that they thought he was a pretty good dog.

ONE-ARMED MAN HANGS HIMSELF

Maimed Employee of Candy Factory Found Suspended by Iron Chain, with His Legs in the Loose Sugar.

When the employees of George L. Shattuck's candy factory at No. 273, Tompkins avenue, Brooklyn, opened up the sugar bins early to-day they discovered Henry Van Tell, a fellow worker, suspended by a chain to a beam, with his legs up to the knees in loose sugar. The man had hanged himself with a chain trace during the night and had been dead for several hours.

Van Tell lived with his wife and two children at No. 138 Throop avenue, Williamsburg. Last year while working on a taffy machine in a candy factory at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street and Third avenue, Manhattan, his right arm was torn from his body in the machinery. Since then his usefulness has been impaired and he became dependent. His body was cut down and taken to his home.

Solid Gold Jewelry.

Things for personal adornment figure largely in our Christmas plans. That fact is very manifest in our stock of Gold Jewelry. We show everything usually found in progressive jewelry stores. The designs are the latest, the qualities are thoroughly reliable and prices are far below those of specialty dealers.

Diamond Jewelry.—1st Fl.
We do not claim that our Diamonds are intrinsically superior to those sold elsewhere. That would be mere boasting. Our plea for your preference is based on the fact that we secured our Diamonds at very low prices and are selling them at exceedingly narrow margins. Many another dealer would consider three times our profit fair merchandising. However, we sell Diamonds just as we do everything else—as low as possible.

Rings, Brooches, Earrings, Lockets, Scarf Pins, Links, be-Diamonded Knives, Cigar Cutters, Purses, Match Boxes and many other articles appropriate for presents. Antique gold-finished and enamelled effects are highest in favor.

Saving your money on precious things is one of the happiest of our doings. Extravagant prices are usually maintained on Diamonds—everywhere but here. We plan and study and work to give the biggest bulk and brilliancy for the least money. Our low-priced policy is not blocked by Diamonds. It backs our bid for your preference.

Watches.—1st Fl.
We sell thousands of Watches—and the business keeps growing. That's because our prices are right. But it is while the Christmas spirit dominates that your expectations increase. The present movement in Watches affords the economy that amply satisfies the demands we've encouraged you to make.
